"Change is hard at first, messy in the middle and gorgeous at the end"

Hello, my name is George, Batch 2015-2017.

'My journey has started due to some feeling every engineer experiences once in a time. After my studies in engineering I worked for a year but got bored working. So, I thought it's time for something different and more challenging. For this reason, I enrolled in the PGPBA at the Indo-German Training Centre. At the outset things were weird as it was a new city, new people and a whole new experience. But life at IGTC has taught me to be independent, realistic and more adaptable, but most important valuing people around you. The faculty members are very open-minded and give real life experiences, so that we can actually understand the concept rather than memorizing answers as it used to be in college days. The internship was the most interesting part of my journey; me being a damn lazy fellow waking up at 6 in the morning and completing assignments and projects in time is a whole different experience. The internship has taught me unity in diversity; despite misunderstandings due to problems language or culture wise, all that matters is doing a great job and working together. All in all, it is a superb experience and I'm hoping for the best ahead.'
